

The following is a correct LIST of the Gentlemen who voted FOR and AGAINST the Address upon the Peace, in the House of Commons, on Tuesday Morning the 18th, of February, 1783.

It is given to our Readers simply to shew the respectability and characters of the Persons who compose it, and to enable Mankind to judge how far an Opposition to the Peace is justified by the unnatural junction of those very Men who were foremost to call out for Peace, on any terms, with others who were the means of bringing upon us those calamities now so happily averted by the Wisdom, Fortitude, and Honesty of as upright an Administration as ever directed the Affairs of this Country.

County Members for the Peace, 58
Against it, 32

Majority of County Members for the Peace, 26

The County Members are marked thus *. Those with a †, are the old friends of the good Lord North and his new Ally. Lord Hyde, Sir Cecil Wray, John Elwes, and Archibald M'Donald, Esqs. voted with the Minister the second night, though not the first. These Gentlemen expected that Opposition would, in consequence of the Address to the King, (which stated that his faithful Commons would immediately take the Articles of Pacification into their most serious consideration), enter fully into the business, and state their objections not generally, but specifically; but, the instant they observed that the arrow of Opposition was levelled not at the Measures of Government, but at the Man, to their everlasting honour voted with the MINISTER.
